they are not acts of what is distinctively human namely his intellect and his will the term human act is restricted in philosophy to those acts which a man does knowingly and willingly which he has the power either to do or not to do 3 to be qualified for the direction of human acts philosophy must derive its conclusions by reasoning from first principles it must take into account the nature of man and the natures of all the causes that influence human action much of this we have considered in metaphysics or mental philosophy ethics is thus founded on metaphysics moral philosophy assumes as its principles the conclusions established in mental philosophy this book has been prepared particularly for the use of the freshman class in harvard college the author has at the same time desired to meet the need felt in our high schools of a manual of moral science fitted for the more advanced classes in the preparation of this treatise the author has been at no pains to avoid saying what others had said before yet the book is original so far as such a book can be or ought to be original the author has directly copied nothing except dugald stewart's classification of the desires but as his reading for several years has been principally in the department of ethics it is highly probable that much of what he supposes to be his own thought may have been derived from other minds of course there is no small part of the contents of a work of this kind which is the common property of writers and must in some form reappear in every elementary manual notice this book is published by historical books limited publicdomain.org.uk as a public domain book if you have any inquiries requests or need any help you can just send an email to publications publicdomain.org.uk this book is found as a public domain and free book based on various online catalogs if you think there are any problems regard copyright issues please contact us immediately via dmca publicdomain.org.uk excerpt from elements of moral philosophy comprising the theory of morals and practical ethics moral philosophy or ethics says dr paley is that science which teaches men their duty and the reasons of it one advantage of making this science a study is to lead the student to reflect on the nature of the motives by which he is habitually actuated and the tendency of the course of conduct which he is daily pursuing although the science should afford no new information in regard to the moral nature of man nor cast any new light on the path of duty yet the individual might derive very great benefit from being led frequently and seriously to reflect on the subjects on which it treats it is of reflection rather than instruction that many stand most in need about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
